DR. J. MARION SIMS One of the most famous of all Southern doctors was J. Marion Sims. He was the first in his field to meet with success in treating club foot. In 1845, he advanced the theory that lockjaw is due to mechanical pressure on the base of the brain. He devised a method of curing abdominal fistula, and was the first surgeon to use silver wire in closing incisions. Later he founded Woman's Hospital in New York. Dr. L. L.
